3. The financial turnover at the depot averaged about nine million eastmarks per month.
  4. The depot supplied 18 Soviet units, mostly of the air force, and 12 enlisted men's PX's. The units sent their supply officers to the depot, and the supplies were paid for with checks payable through an East Berlin bank.
  5. Almost all incoming and outgoing supplies were shipped by rail. Trucks were used only for deliveries to units located in the vicinity, and for bringing supplies from the Bernau railroad station.
  6. German personnel at the depot were paid by the German Konsum organization in Potsdam, but took their orders from the Russians. Guards for the depot, which was surrounded by woods, had since 1952 been furnished by the Volkspolizei. There were six guards during the night, and three in the daytime.
